

Society of Antiquaries
of Scotland

The Antiquarian Rediscovery of the Antonine Wall

Lawrence Keppie

ISBN: 978-1-908332-00-4 (hardback) • 978-1-908332-24-0 (PDF)

The text in this work is published under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 4.0 International licence (CC BY-NC 4.0). This licence allows you to share, copy, distribute and transmit the work and to adapt the work for non-commercial purposes, providing attribution is made to the authors (but not in any way that suggests that they endorse you or your use of the work). Attribution should include the following information:

Keppie, L 2012 The Antiquarian Rediscovery of the Antonine Wall. Edinburgh: Society of Antiquaries of Scotland. <https://doi.org/10.9750/9781908332240>

Important: The illustrations and figures in this work are not covered by the terms of the Creative Commons licence. Permissions must be obtained from third-party copyright holders to reproduce any of the illustrations.

Every effort has been made to obtain permissions from the copyright holders of third-party material reproduced in this work. The Society of Antiquaries of Scotland would be grateful to hear of any errors or omissions.

Society of Antiquaries of Scotland is a registered Scottish charity number SC 010440. Visit our website at www.socantscot.org or find us on Twitter @socantscot.

The Antiquarian Rediscovery
of the Antonine Wall

The Antiquarian Rediscovery of the Antonine Wall

LAWRENCE KEPPIE

Edinburgh 2012
SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES OF SCOTLAND

Jacket image (front): Emperor Antoninus Pius (AD 86–161)
Vatican Museums and Galleries, Vatican City/Alinari/The Bridgeman Art Library
Jacket image (back): Members of the Glasgow Archaeological Society at Castlecary fort excavations, September 1902
(artist W A Donnelly, Illustrated London News, 4 October 1902; © Illustrated London News Ltd/Mary Evans)

Published in 2012 in Great Britain by Society of Antiquaries of Scotland

Society of Antiquaries of Scotland
National Museum of Scotland
Chambers Street
Edinburgh EH1 1JF
Tel: 0131 247 4115
Fax: 0131 247 4163
Email: administration@socantscot.org
Website: www.socantscot.org

The Society of Antiquaries of Scotland is a registered Scottish charity no SCO10440.

ISBN 978 1 908332 00 4

British Library Cataloguing-in-Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Copyright © Lawrence Keppie, 2012

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in or introduced into a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form, or by any means (electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise) without the prior written permission of the publisher. Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

Society of Antiquaries of Scotland gratefully acknowledges funding towards the publication of this volume from Historic Scotland, the British Academy and the Jennie S Gordon Memorial Foundation.

Design and production by Lawrie Law and Alison Rae
Typesetting by Waverley Typesetters, Warham, Norfolk
Manufactured in Spain by Graphycems

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
List of illustrations	ix
Chapter 1
Introducing the Antonine Wall	1
The value of the antiquarian record	6
The landscape of the Wall corridor	11
The place-name evidence	13
Chapter 2
The Wall after the Roman withdrawal	17
The Wall in the early written sources	18
The Middle Ages: chapels, mottes and towerhouses	20
The Wall in Scottish myth and legend	23
The survival and re-use of Roman stonework	25
The Wall in the early Scottish historians	27
Chapter 3
Timothy Pont and his maps	35
The 17th century: William Camden and his legacy	38
Chapter 4
Sir Robert Sibbald, the King's geographer	47
After the Revolution of 1688	50
The recording of inscribed and sculptured stones	57
The collecting of coins and small finds	59
William Stukeley and friends	62
Chapter 5
Sir John Clerk of Penicuik, Bt	69
Alexander Gordon, the singer	71
John Horsley, the nonconformist minister	78
Chapter 6
The early 18th century: rebellion and aftermath	87
General William Roy: the great surveyor	91
From sea to sea: the Forth & Clyde Canal	93
From the rational to the romantic	99
The growth of institutional collecting	107

Chapter 7
The coming of the railways	115
Two Glasgow antiquaries: John Buchanan and Robert Stuart	117
The establishment of archaeological societies	118
The beginnings of organised excavation: The Antonine Wall Report	123
Excavations at the forts	127
Epilogue	141
Editorial notes	145
Bibliography	149
Index	163

Acknowledgements

For their assistance and advice I should like to thank former colleagues at The Hunterian, University of Glasgow; and the staffs of Glasgow University Library; University of Glasgow Archive Services; Society of Antiquaries Library, London; Northumberland Archives, Woodhorn; Falkirk Archives; Royal Commission on the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Scotland (RCAHMS); Historic Scotland; National Library of Scotland; National Records of Scotland; Aberdeen University Library; Trinity College Library, Dublin; National Museums Scotland; William Patrick Library, Kirkintilloch; Glasgow City Archives; Edinburgh University Library (Special Collections); University of Strathclyde Archives; Bodleian Library, Oxford; Sackler Library, Oxford; Leiden University Library; Royal Society Library, London; Somerset Heritage Centre, Taunton; North Yorkshire County Record Office, Northallerton; and the Wellcome Library, London.

For their help on detailed points, I am glad to mention Geoff Bailey, Professor David Breeze, Dr Iain Gordon Brown, Dr Tom Brown, Dr Margaret Collin, Trevor Cowie, Morag Cross, Chris Fleet, Dr Sally Foster, Dr P W M Freeman, Imogen Gibbon, Professor Roger Green, Dr Martin Henig, Professor Richard Hingley, Nick Holmes, Dr Fraser Hunter, Dr Rebecca Jones, the Revd Tom Davidson Kelly, Don Martin, James Mearns, Dr Graham Piddock, Professor James Russell, Dr Simon Taylor, James Walker, Colin Wallace, Patricia Weeks, Dr Jean Whittaker and Professor Roger Wilson. Elizabeth Bell uncomplainingly pursued countless lines of enquiry on my behalf. Margaret Robb has endured this project for more years than she may care to remember.

The complete text was read, to my advantage, by Professor David Breeze and Geoff Bailey, by Roderick McCullagh and Dr George Findlater (for Historic Scotland) and by the Society's anonymous referee. Shorter sections were read by Dr Iain Gordon Brown (who has contributed so much over many years to our understanding of 18th-century antiquarianism), Morag Cross, James Mearns and Dr Simon Taylor. An appointment to an Honorary Professorial Research Fellowship at The Hunterian enabled me to continue my long association with it and to have access to its Roman Scotland Archive.

The award of a Small Research Grant by the British Academy enabled me to undertake additional research in Oxford, London, Newcastle and Edinburgh. Generous financial support towards publication came from Historic Scotland. A grant from the Jennie S Gordon Memorial Foundation covered many of the costs of obtaining illustrations and of reproduction fees. I am also grateful to Erin Osborne-Martin and her colleagues at the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland for their encouragement and support throughout.

Unpublished archival sources are prominent in the following pages. The original spelling and punctuation in the passages quoted have been retained wherever possible. For permission to cite documents in their care, I am grateful to Sir Robert Clerk of Penicuik Bt who generously allowed the use of the Clerk of Penicuik papers on deposit at the National Records of Scotland; and to the Keeper of the Records of Scotland; the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland; the National Library of Scotland; National Museums Scotland; Falkirk Archives; the Director of Archive Services, University of Glasgow; the Glasgow Archaeological Society; Glasgow University Library; Somerset Heritage Centre; the Society of Antiquaries of London; University of Strathclyde Archives; the Bodleian Library, University of Oxford; the Sackler Library, University of Oxford; the Trustees of the Haverfield Bequest, University of Oxford; Professor James Russell, University of British Columbia, Vancouver; and BRB (Residuary) Ltd, successor in title to the British Railways Board. Images were kindly made available by a number of organisations and copyright holders; they are individually acknowledged in the captions.

List of illustrations

1	The Antonine Wall: forts and fortlets (drawn by L Keppie)	2
2	The Antonine Wall: section through the military way, rampart, ditch and upcast mound (drawn by L Keppie)	3
3	Section through the Wall at Tentfield Plantation east of Rough Castle, looking north, showing the stone base and the turf superstructure; vertical scale in feet (© Crown copyright. Reproduced by courtesy of Historic Scotland)	3
4	The Antonine Wall and Ditch in Seabegs Wood, looking west (© L Keppie)	4
5	The Ditch at Watling Lodge, Falkirk, looking west, with the former stable block silhouetted in the Ditch-hollow (© L Keppie)	4
6	The Military Way in Seabegs Wood, looking west (© L Keppie)	5
7	Altar to Jupiter dedicated by the villagers (vikani) residing at castellum Veluniate , Carriden (© National Museums Scotland)	5
8	Ceremony of purification preceding the campaigns of Lollius Urbicus, as depicted on the right-hand side-panel of the distance slab from Bridgeness, Falkirk (© National Museums Scotland)	6
9	A tall female figure, perhaps Britannia , presenting a laurel wreath to the eagle-standard of the Twentieth Legion held by its bearer, the central scene on a distance slab from Hutcheson Hill, west of Bearsden (© L Keppie, courtesy of The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	7
10	Coin (sestertius) of Antoninus Pius, obverse showing the emperor's profile, minted at Rome AD 143–4 (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	7
11	Coin (sestertius) of Antoninus Pius (reverse of ill. 10), minted at Rome AD 143–4, showing the winged goddess Victory holding a laurel wreath, with the letters BRITAN (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	7
12	The Antonine Wall: places mentioned in the text (drawn by L Keppie)	10–11
13	Detail from a 1st-edition Ordnance Survey map (Dumbartonshire sheet XXII), showing the Wall west and east of New Kilpatrick (Bearsden), at a scale of 6 inches to 1 mile (Reproduced from the 1861 Ordnance Survey map, with permission)	12
14	The well-head at Bar Hill (© L Keppie)	17
15	Cross-section of the well in the headquarters building at Bar Hill fort, showing material deposited at the close of the Roman occupation, as found by excavation in 1902 (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	18
16	A detail from the map of Britain prepared by Matthew Paris c. 1250, showing the Antonine Wall and Hadrian's Wall (© The British Library Board, MS Cotton Claudius D.VI, fol 12v)	19
17	Twelfth-century chapel at Kinneil, with associated graveyard, seen from the west (© G B Bailey)	20
18	The motte at Cawder, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825 (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fig 382). The motte was quarried away in the early 1940s	21
19	The motte at Watling Lodge (Tamfourhill), west of Falkirk, photographed before its destruction in 1894, reproduced from G Macdonald, The Roman Wall in Scotland , 1934	21
20	Castle Cary, reproduced from D MacGibbon and T Ross, The Domestic and Castellated Architecture of Scotland , 1889, volume 3	22
21	The course of the Roman frontier between Bo'ness and Kinneil House, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825 (© The British Library Board Add MS 33686, fig 339)	23
22	Arthur's O'on, as depicted by William Stukeley, An Account of a Roman Temple , 1720	24

23	The ‘Roman’ bridge at Duntocher, drawn by Joseph Farington, engraved by James Basire, published in General William Roy, The Military Antiquities of the Romans in Britain , 1793, plate xxxvii	25
24	Farm steading at Westerwood, seen from the south-west, 1996. The line of trees from left to right marks the position of the Ditch. The farm buildings occupy the north-east quarter of the fort (© L Keppie)	26
25	George Buchanan, oil on canvas by John Scougall, 1693 (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	29
26	Timothy Pont, detail from Sheet 32 (‘East Central Lowlands’), showing the line of the Wall (dotted) between Kirkintilloch and Cumbernauld. The Latin caption (centre left) was probably added by Robert Gordon of Straloch c 1640 (© National Library of Scotland, Adv MS 70.2.9, Pont 32)	35
27	Timothy Pont’s drawing of the constituent parts of the Wall, as published in Edmund Gibson’s edition of Camden’s Britannia , 1695	37
28	Distance slab of the Twentieth Legion, recording the completion of 3,000 paces of the Wall, as engraved at Glasgow College, 1768. The stone was presented to the College by the 10th Earl Marischal in 1761	39
29	Sir William Brereton, engraving reproduced from J Rircraft, England’s Champions and Truth’s faithfull Patriots , 1647 (© Glasgow University Library)	40
30	Johan Blaeu, Theatrum Orbis Terrarum , 1654. Detail from his map of Sterlinensis praefectura (Stirlingshire), showing the course of the Wall between Castlecary and Kinneil, with extensive woodland at Cumbernauld and Callendar (© National Library of Scotland)	41
31	Sir Robert Sibbald, engraving by W H Lizars c 1721, after a painting by J Alexander (© Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh)	47
32	Page from Sir Robert Sibbald’s manuscript text of his Atlas Scoticus (c 1683), showing inscribed stones from the Wall (© The National Library of Scotland, Adv MS 15.1.1, fol 58v)	48
33	The Wall corridor between Kirkintilloch (top) and Kinneil (bottom), in the handwriting of Sir Robert Sibbald (© National Library of Scotland, Adv MS 81.1.21, fol 24)	49
34	Sir Robert Sibbald’s map of the Antonine Wall, published in his Historical Inquiries , 1707 (© Glasgow University Library)	50
35	Outer quadrangle of Glasgow College, built 1658–90, photographed c 1870 by Thomas Annan, reproduced from W Stewart (ed), The University of Glasgow Old and New , 1891	51
36	William Dunlop, Principal of Glasgow College, 1690–1700, oil on canvas by an unknown artist (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	52
37	John Urry, engraving by N Pigné, reproduced from J Urry, The Works of Geoffrey Chaucer , 1721 (© Glasgow University Library)	53
38	Drawings of stones seen by John Urry, 1696–8 (© Edinburgh University Library, Special Collections, MS Dk.1.2, Quarto A74, fol 99)	54
39	Cawder House, Bishopbriggs, seen from the south-east, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825, with the Antonine Ditch at left (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fol 383)	56
40	Tombstone of C Julius Marcellinus, as sketched ‘in Scotland near Miniabrough’ [Kilsyth], by a German traveller, c 1600 (© The British Library Board, MS Cotton Julius F.VI fol 323)	57
41	A page from William Camden’s own copy of the 1607 edition of his Britannia , featuring three stones from the Wall, and with the text of an altar erected by L Tanicius Verus to the god Silvanus in the right-hand margin (© Bodleian Library, University of Oxford, MS Smith 1, p. 699)	58
42	Lower part of the altar erected by L Tanicius Verus (illus 41) rediscovered in 1976 at Kilsyth Castle, drawn by Margaret Scott (Courtesy of The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	59
43	‘The most invaluable Jewel of Antiquity that ever was found in the Island of Britain.’ Fragment of a building record naming Quintus Lollius Urbicus, first seen at Balmuildy, 1696–8, here restored to show the titles of the emperor Antoninus Pius (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	60
44	Small finds including a phallic pendant (no 9), a silvered bronze brooch (no 10) and a bronze arm-purse (no 23), as illustrated in Sir Robert Sibbald’s Roman Ports, Colonies and Forts , 1711 (© Glasgow University Library)	61

45	Frontispiece of William Stukeley's Account of a Roman Temple , 1720, showing Roman inscribed stones, mostly from the Antonine Wall	62
46	William Stukeley's map of the Antonine Wall, in his Account of a Roman Temple , 1720	63
47	Sir John Clerk of Penicuik, 2nd Baronet, oil on canvas by Sir John de Medina, c 1700 (© Sir Robert Clerk of Penicuik, Bt)	69
48	Title page of Alexander Gordon's Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1726	70
49	Ground plan of Bar Hill fort, reproduced from Alexander Gordon, Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1726. The dedication is to James Glen, Gordon's travelling companion on the Wall in 1723	72
50	Inscribed column shaft, first reported at at Kilsyth in 1719, as drawn by Alexander Gordon, Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1726	73
51	The 'Priapus stone' from Westerwood fort, as illustrated (left) by Alexander Gordon, Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1726, and (right) by John Horsley, Britannia Romana , 1732	73
52	Alexander Gordon's map of the Antonine Wall, in his Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1726	76
53	Robert Wodrow, 'Mi[ni]ster att Eastwood', late 19th-century collotype from an 18th-century miniature portrait in watercolour, artist unknown (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	77
54	Distance slab of the Second Legion from Summerston, recording completion of 3,666½ paces of the Wall, presented to Glasgow College in 1694 by John Graham of Dougalston (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	77
55	Inscribed and sculptured stones from Shirva, 1726–31, illustrated in Alexander Gordon, Additions and Corrections by Way of Supplement to the Itinerarium Septentrionale , 1732	80
56	John Horsley's map of the Antonine Wall, in his Britannia Romana , 1732	81
57	John Horsley's sectional map showing forts between Balmuildy (top) and Bar Hill (bottom), in his Britannia Romana , 1732	82
58	Robert Simson, Professor of Mathematics at Glasgow College, engraving by A Baillie, 1776, after a portrait by Peter de Nune (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	87
59	Distance slab of the Twentieth Legion from Old Kilpatrick recording construction of 4,411 feet of the Wall, presented before 1684 to Glasgow College by the 3rd Marquess of Montrose, as engraved in 1768. The slab shows Victory reclining in the manner of a river-god, surely an allusion to the adjacent River Clyde	88
60	Sir Michael Bruce as 'stonekiller' of Arthur's O'on, drawn by William Stukeley, reproduced from The Antiquarian Repertory iii, 1780 (© Glasgow University Library)	89
61	Doocot built in 1761 by Sir James Clerk, 3rd Baronet, set atop the stable block at Penicuik House, Midlothian, replicating Arthur's O'on (© L Keppie; courtesy of Sir Robert Clerk of Penicuik, Bt)	90
62	Detail from General William Roy's map of the Wall showing its line between Westerwood and Seabegs, published in his Military Antiquities of the Romans in Britain , 1793	91
63	'A very elegant plan of a house, in the style of Palladio.' The bath-house at Castlecary fort, drawn in 1769 by General William Roy, published in Military Antiquities of the Romans in Britain , 1793	92
64	Altars found at Auchendavy fort in 1771, during construction of the Forth & Clyde Canal, engraved by James Basire, published in Archaeologia iii (1775)	93
65	Professor John Anderson with some of his inventions. Engraving by William Kay, 1792 (© University of Strathclyde Archives)	94
66	Travel and subsistence claim submitted in 1772 by Professor John Anderson for 'procuring the Antiquities lately found' at Auchendavy fort (UGAS, The University of Glasgow Archive, GUA 58282)	95
67	Travel and subsistence claim submitted in 1774 by Professor John Anderson for retrieving inscribed and sculptured stones found at Castlecary fort (UGAS, The University of Glasgow Archive, GUA 58284)	97
68	Pottery found at Duntocher, 1775–8, engraved by James Basire, as published in Richard Gough's edition of Camden's Britannia , 1789, volume 3	100
69	The bath-house at Duntocher fort, engraved c 1778 by an unknown artist (© The Society of Antiquaries of London, Minute Book XVI)	101
70	Auchendavy fort, seen from the south side of the Forth & Clyde Canal, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825 (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fig 372)	102

71	Part of an inscribed slab, and a small sculptured stone ‘in the wall of the barn’, as sketched at Auchendavy by the Revd John Skinner, 1825 (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fig 373)	103
72	Balmuildy fort and the Antonine Ditch at Summerston seen from the north, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825 (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fig 385)	104
73	Small sculptured slab from Croy Hill fort, showing three legionaries (© National Museums Scotland)	105
74	Nethercroy farmhouse, as sketched by the Revd John Skinner, 1825, showing two Roman stones (including illus 73) built into its façade (© The British Library Board, Add MS 33686, fig 363)	106
75	Modern inscriptions cut on one face of the Carrick Stone, a Roman altar near Cumbernauld (© Margaret J Robb)	107
76	Plaster cast of a distance slab found in 1865 at Hutcheson Hill, west of Bearsden, made before it was shipped to the United States. The colouring is modern (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	108
77	Sculptured stone found at Arniebog near Westerwood fort, 1868, showing a bearded Triton and a bound captive (© The Hunterian, University of Glasgow)	109
78	Façade of the Hunterian Museum at Glasgow College, which opened to the public in 1807, photographed c 1870 by Thomas Annan, reproduced from W Stewart (ed), The University of Glasgow Old and New , 1891	110
79	Earthworks at Camelon drawn by Mungo Buchanan in 1892, prior to excavation of the fort (© Falkirk Archives, A067.011)	115
80	Castle Cary village from the south-west, showing the railway viaduct (1841) and the modern road system, photographed 1996. The Roman fort lies to the right of the viaduct (© L Keppie)	116
81	John Buchanan in his robes as an Honorary Doctor of Laws of Glasgow University, 1872, photograph published in J MacLehose, Memoirs and Portraits of One Hundred Glasgow Men , 1886	117
82	Mungo Buchanan, c 1902 (© Falkirk Archives, P05456)	119
83	John MacLuckie examining a culvert across the stone base of the Wall at Tayavalla west of Falkirk, photographed by Mungo Buchanan, May 1891 (© Falkirk Archives, A067.011)	120
84	The Military Way on Croy Hill, cut by the track of a newly laid mineral railway, photographed by Mungo Buchanan, June 1891 (© Falkirk Archives, A067.011)	121
85	Antiquaries from Glasgow and Falkirk at Rough Castle fort, photographed by Mungo Buchanan, May 1891 (© Falkirk Archives, P02116)	122
86	Turf rampart reconstructed by James Russell at Bonnyside near Rough Castle fort, as photographed probably by John Annan, 1891; a member of Russell’s family is standing in front of it (Courtesy of Professor James Russell)	123
87	Ground plan of Camelon fort after excavation in 1901, drawn by Mungo Buchanan, published in Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland 35, 1900–1 (© Society of Antiquaries of Scotland)	124
88	Torso of the god Hermes, in buff sandstone (© National Museums Scotland)	125
89	Antiquaries including John MacLuckie examining the stone torso (illus 88) at Camelon, 1905 (© Falkirk Archives, P05471)	126
90	Tomb of John MacLuckie, Camelon Cemetery, 1907. The flat slab sits on six hypocaust pillars taken from the recent excavations at Camelon fort (© L Keppie)	127
91	Remnant of the bath-house at Castle Cary fort, as revealed during excavation, 1902, published in Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland 37, 1902–3 (© Society of Antiquaries of Scotland)	128
92	A section cut across the Wall, Ditch and upcast mound, looking west, during excavation at Rough Castle fort, 1903, photographed by Mungo Buchanan, published in Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland 39, 1904–5 (© Society of Antiquaries of Scotland)	128
93	Defensive pits (lilia) at Rough Castle fort, photographed by Mungo Buchanan, 1903, published in Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland 39, 1904–5 (© Society of Antiquaries of Scotland)	129
94	Visit by members of the Glasgow Archaeological Society to ongoing excavations at Castle Cary fort, September 1902, under the guidance of George Macdonald, as sketched on the day by the artist W A Donnelly (Illustrated London News , 4 October 1902)	130

- 95 Visit by members of the Glasgow Archaeological Society to the remains of the Wall newly exposed in New Kilpatrick Cemetery, Bearsden, April 1903, as sketched on the day by the artist W A Donnelly (Illustrated London News, 2 May 1903) 131
- 96 Ground plan of Bar Hill fort, after excavation in 1902–5 (reproduced from G Macdonald and A Park, The Roman Forts on the Bar Hill, 1906) 132
- 97 George Macdonald, photographed in 1918 (© National Portrait Gallery) 133
- 98 The Wall crossing Croy Hill, seen from the east. The trees (centre left) mark the site of the fort. Croy village and a modern quarry lie beyond (© Crown copyright. Reproduced by courtesy of Historic Scotland) 140
- 99 The fort at Rough Castle, seen from the north-west. The lilia pits are at the bottom left (© Crown copyright. Reproduced by courtesy of Historic Scotland) 141
- 100 Plaque commemorating the ‘inscription’ of the Antonine Wall as a World Heritage Site, 2008, at the Roman bath-house in Roman Road, Bearsden (© L Keppie) 142